

City Hospital Patients Suffer No Hardship

Check-up Shows 55 Were at Kingston City Hospital When Fire Occurred Saturday—Benedictine Hospital Received 32, of Whom 6 Have Been Discharged—Others Removed to Their Homes—No Serious Results to Patients—Extent of Damage.

With insurance of $117,000, the fire loss to the Kingston City Hospital will be fully covered as it is estimated the damage from Saturday's fire will not exceed $100,000.

The board of managers of the Kingston City Hospital are expected to meet some time today to discuss plans as to the future of the institution.

A double check of the inmates at the hospital at the time of the fire disclosed fifty-five patients and all of them were safely accounted for. Of that number thirty-two were removed to the Benedictine Hospital and twenty-three to their homes.

In inspection of the hospital showed that the damage by fire was confined entirely to the old hospital and to the two attics in the new wings, and that the only damage to the new four story addition in the rear was from smoke and water.

New Building Fireproof. The mothers and babies who were removed from the maternity ward and taken to the Nurses' Home on the opposite side of the street were later taken to their own homes. The mothers and their babies were:

PETER SALM. ©

This is the first posed photograph of the Salm baby, now fifteen months old. His father, Count Salm, is at Palm Beach to visit the boy, who is in the custody of his mother, the former Millicent Rogers. She one day will inherit her father's $50,000,000 which in time will pass on to her son, Peter.

"Old Ironsides" Fund Half Raised

Four Million Children Contributed to Fund for Saving Famous Ship—Approximately One-Half of Fund in Sight.

Boston, Feb. 22.—Rear Admiral Philip Andrews, commandant of the First Naval District and chairman of the National Committee of the Save "Old Ironsides" Fund, announces that approximately one-half of the money needed for the restoration of the old ship is now in sight from the collections by the Elks in 200 sections of the country. "School authorities in the big cities are gradually becoming aware of the great possibilities of the campaign from an educational and patriotic viewpoint and are allowing the committee to proceed with its work," says Admiral Andrews. "Boston and New York have suspended their rules and we are confident of having the campaign carried on in every big city of the nation."

"Primarily this campaign was not launched for the purpose of collecting funds. If that was our only purpose, the money needed for restoration could have been raised among the financial and business interests of the country in a few weeks. Secretary of the Navy Curtis D. Wilbur, however, visualized its opportunity to stimulate the patriotism of the children of the nation and awaken their interest in this national keepsake and the early history of our navy."

Appropriation Not Wanted.
"Many have unhesitatingly stated that congress should have voted the money. When I was approached on this subject, while I was in command of the ship in Europe, I wrote, that was my impression. When I examined into the plan of campaign, I was struck with its educational and patriotic value to the nation. Had congress appropriated the money, the old ship and the lessons of patriotism that are carried with its history would soon be forgotten. A few items in the papers about the appropriation and the rebuffing of it then silence the asking of the children, to contribute their mite, their interest is awakened. For their parents are now teaching speaking people, the young are taking the story home to their parents as a work of education."

"It was in the anthracite regions that the Elks made no appeal for funds in the schools. The quotas assigned them were voted out of the treasuries of their lodges. They carried on in the schools, conducted the essay contests, the titles of which had been selected by President Coolidge, and they staged patriotic exercises in every school. Not a word was said about contributions. In scores of other places this same method was pursued, and the main purpose was carried out."

4,000,000 Children Contributed.
"Ten million children have had vividly presented to them the story of the deeds and adventures of 'Old Ironsides,' and four million have already contributed their mite. Had Congress voted the money, all this would have been lost."

"In a great many parts of the country there have been some who have taken the narrow view that 'Old Ironsides' is only a Boston institution and her restoration should be provided by the citizens of Boston. A superficial knowledge of the history of this old ship shows how ridiculous this statement is. She did more than any other ship to win our independence on the seas and that meant for the whole nation. The 'Constitution' and her exploits belong to the whole nation, though the facts that she was built in Boston and returned to Boston gives Boston a peculiar local pride in her."

Uses for Gyroscope
When first invented, the gyroscope, then called rotascope, was used as a scientific toy to illustrate the principles of rotating bodies, the composition of rotations, etc. A delicate mounted form of the above apparatus, invented by M. Foucault, is used to render visible the rotation of the earth on account of the tendency of the rotating wheel to preserve a constant plane of rotation, independently of the earth's motion. This same principle is made use of in an instrument invented by Dr. H. Anschütz-Kaempfe, designed to replace the mariner's compass or to serve as a check upon its accuracy. Other uses of the gyroscope are as a steering apparatus, and as a balancing device in certain flying machines, and in a proposed type of monorailway.

Making Sure
A certain financier is a great believer in punctuality, and on a recent occasion, when an early conference was in prospect, which he had to come to town to attend, he so impressed a page boy with the importance of calling him early that the lad decided desperate measures were needed.
Here, at an unearthly hour there came a prodigious hammering on the financier's bedroom door and a voice called loudly:
"Tarry for you, sir!"
Wondering what the parcel could be, the financier took it in and, seated on the edge of his bed, unwrapped it. Imagine his indignation upon finding the neatly printed placard it contained: "Nearly time to get up."

Famous Art Galleries
The First and Third galleries are in Florence. The First is the second largest gallery in the world. Both are used as art galleries. The Palazzo Pitti was begun by Brunelleschi and completed by Alessandro. It houses a wonderful library as well as a magnificent art collection. The Galleria degli Uffizi also contains one of the chief art collections of the world. It was founded in the fifteenth century. The River Arno separates the two palaces, which are connected by a covered gallery over the river.

BEWARE THE COUGH OR COLD THAT HANGS ON

Persistent coughs and colds lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, a emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membrane and inhibits germ growth.
Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for persistent coughs and colds and other forms of throat troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the inflamed membrane and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.
Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of persistent coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, bronchitis and other forms of respiratory disease, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. Creomulsion Company, Atlanta, Ga. (adv.)

THE EX-KAISER'S COOK.

The "Gastronomic Glories of the Hohenzollerns," translated from a Vienna publication for the Living Age, is more interesting in its uncondemned humor than in its statement of fact. "Wille Duenger, its author, was descended from a long line of cooks," and finally rose to the great height of the former Kaiser's chef. He discusses the heavy meals of the Hohenzollerns with the gravity of an historian with first-hand knowledge of the rise and fall of empires. Once when the whole royal family went on a sort of picnic with high army lords, Wille, that blow off and fell into the lap of an officer, who "stared at it in indignant disgust, as if it had been a reptile," and, as "none of the officers would touch it," Wille had to get down from the box and retrieve his headgear with the humblest apologies. "He could have reminded them that they would soon eat food he had handled, but, of course he would not have dared such a 'come back' even had it occurred to him."

What the former Kaiser ate at breakfast, lunch and dinner is recounted to the last detail. Of the preparation of one of his favorite dishes we read: "A well-hung joint was pounded tender, wrapped in long strips of bacon, and immersed in clarified with whole peppers, parsley, onion, thyme and a few laurel leaves, when it was allowed to pickle for four days, being frequently turned in the intervals." We have quoted only about one-fourth of the extensive description. Another long paragraph tells of the preparation of a sole, both wine and champagne being employed in the process. There seems to have been a continual succession of great and glorious feasts, but alas, Wille Duenger laments, the times have "mightily changed" since then. Too, too cruel are the shiftings of fickle fortune. Wille's Kaiser (though still master of many millions) is "far from the scene of his former glory" and can no longer eat in the superlative of old.

CHANGED BOSTON.

Not only the Puritan dissenters who settled Massachusetts but more recent generations, dominantly Protestant and Unitarian, would be amazed and loud in their lament if they knew of the change that has come upon Boston, as a result of its Irish, French-Canadian and other foreign additions. In explanation of that surprising occurrence, the election of a Protestant mayor of Boston, a correspondent of the New York Outlook says:

The Catholic politicians of Boston have been badly split for a number of years, and this year, while fighting among themselves, allowed a Protestant to be elected. As for any of the Catholic Democratic vote going to a Protestant Republican, it is too absurd for consideration. The percentage of Catholics in Boston is estimated by authorities to be about sixty-five per cent. The total vote in the last election was 152,953, of which the successful candidate received 44,452, or 29.1 per cent. The seven Catholic candidates received a total of 116,541, or 76.9 per cent, which goes to show that none of the Catholic vote was wasted on the Protestant Republican candidate. The City Hall in Boston is as free from Protestants as the Desert of Sahara is of water lilies.

Scores of Emerson, Lowell, Hawthorne, Longfellow and the Concord School of Philosophy as well as of the Mayflower's rock-ribbed dissenters:

Novels by the author of "The Green Hat" were cited in a recent New York divorce case as proof that things formerly forbidden are now being done in good society. The assumption that there is "good society" in the likes of "The Green Hat" would give our Victorian forebears cause if the news could reach them.

The average government clerk in Washington, according to Representative Dancy of Ohio, is "a better, time-killing and back-passing" and "we should get rid of 100,000 or more of the tax-eating drones." Having handed out compliments to this extent it is a wonder that Mr. Dancy did not go on to the climax of "Johnny Hazard."

At a recent meeting of the London County Council it was asserted that "crime and immorality are generally the outstanding features of American films." Though the inspiration of this probably came from hard-pressed rival British producers, there is truth in it to claim the consideration of American cinema.

That Body of Yours

By James W. Barton, M. D.

THE LIVER'S IMPORTANT WORK.

You will remember perhaps a little of the physiology you learned at school. You were taught that the saliva in the mouth turned starch into sugar, that the juice in the stomach helped to make meats and eggs fit to be absorbed into the blood, and that the liver manufactured bile which made fats fit to be absorbed.

However, our research men are spending a great deal of time in investigating the liver. They find that it is the largest organ in the body, and has a number of jobs to do, besides making the bile.

They have discovered that it takes solid substances, some organisms, and even harmful substances in the blood, and actually holds them or filters them out, or destroys them, so that the system is saved from their harmful effects.

You know that you can eat certain things that will cause you no trouble, whereas a small quantity of the same substance put into a blood vessel might cause death.

Why is this? Because you will remember that the blood, which has absorbed material from the intestine, goes through the liver before it enters the general blood stream going to the heart.

This means that the liver gets a chance to hold, destroy, or absorb into itself any harmful material, before it can do any damage to the body.

And does this injure the liver? Yes, it does actually destroy many cells, even large portions of the liver, but such is the size of the organ, that it can still do its work even if a number of its cells are destroyed.

What is my thought? That your health, your very life, depends upon the health of your liver. It is a huge soft organ capable of being kept in excellent condition by two simple things that are in your power.

First, ordinary common sense in eating, that is, not eating his meals, nor meals with too much fat in them.

Second, by any form of exercise that makes your lungs press down wards and thus squeeze the liver, or any tendency exercises which will likewise squeeze the liver.

The health of your liver rests with you.

Harmfulness of Fear

Human fear is unnatural, writes Edward Marie Partridge in Nature's Path. Anything unnatural is unwise and unwise.

Fear is falsehood. We do not enter into it unless some one has lied to us, or we have lied to ourselves. The true people are always the least fearful. In this fact is the primary lesson for those tormented by fear.

No liar on earth equals the bogeyman created by fear. He makes us look for the worst in what may prove the best, and invites all sorts of ill on ourselves by our sickly, cowardly, weak and foolish state of mind. What we fear no longer on ourselves, by the law of psychomotor attraction.

Today's Story in New York History

By Frederic A. Godcharles.

(Copyright, 1926, by the Author)

During the War of 1812 important military movements occurred at Ogdensburg and its vicinity. A threatened invasion of northern New York from that quarter caused General Jacob Brown to be sent there to Garrison Fort Presentation, or Oswegatchie. Brown arrived October 1, 1812, and the next day defeated a British flotilla, sent to attack Ogdensburg. This victory gave Brown much credit. In 1813, there were hostile incursions by both Americans and British across the St. Lawrence. Major Benjamin Forsyth, in command of the United States forces at Ogdensburg, crossed over to Brockville early in February, 1813, released all the prisoners in jail there, and seized some troops and citizens, who were carried to his camp in triumph.

Retaliations soon ensued. Sir George Prevost, governor general of Canada, arrived in Prescott, on the St. Lawrence river opposite Ogdensburg, on his way to York, and assented to a proposal for troops to cross the river on the ice and assail the American village. Considering his own person in danger of capture, Sir George hastened forward toward York, directing Lieutenant Colonel McDonnell to conduct the attack.

At dawn on February 22, 1813, McDonnell appeared on the frozen river with eight hundred soldiers, in two columns, and pushed on to the village at separate points.

Forsyth, informed by spies of this intended assault, had prepared to receive the invaders; but he could not withstand them. It was a sort of surprise. Some of the inhabitants were in bed, others were at breakfast.

Forsyth's riflemen were stationed at old Fort Presentation, at the mouth of the Oswegatchie, and against them McDonnell's right column moved.

The Americans were partly sheltered by the ruins of the fort. Waiting until the British landed, the Americans attacked them with great energy, repulsing the invaders with considerable loss, who fled in confusion over the frozen bosom of the St. Lawrence.

Meanwhile the left column had marched into the town and captured a 24-pound cannon and its custodians without resistance. They expected an easy conquest of the town, but were confronted by artillery under Captain Kellogg and Sheriff York.

The guns of the former became disabled, and he and his men fled across the Oswegatchie and joined Forsyth, leaving the indomitable York to maintain the fight alone, until he and his band were made prisoners.

The village was now in complete possession of the British, and McDonnell proceeded to dislodge Forsyth and his party at the fort. He sent a message demanding surrender, saying: "If you surrender it shall be well; if not, every man shall be put to the bayonet."

"Tell Colonel McDonnell," said Forsyth to the messenger, "there must be more fighting done first."

Then the two cannons near the ruins of the fort gave heavy discharges of grape and canister shot, which threw the invaders into confusion. It was only momentary.

An overwhelming party of British were preparing to make the assault, when Forsyth, seeing his peril, gave orders for a retreat to Black Lake, about eight miles distant. There he wrote to the War Department, giving an account of the affair, and saying: "If you can send me 500 men, all shall be retaken, and Prescott, too, or I will lose my life in the attempt."

Ogdensburg, in possession of the enemy, was plundered by Indians and camp followers of both sexes, who came from Canada, and by resident miscreants. Every house in the village but three was robbed, and the public property carried over to Canada. Two armed schooners, fast in the ice, were burned, and the barracks near the river were laid in ashes. Fifty-two prisoners were taken to Prescott.

The Americans lost in the affair, besides the prisoners, are killed and fifteen wounded; the British loss was six killed and forty-eight wounded.

The victors immediately evacuated Ogdensburg and the fugitive citizens returned.

These events accelerated the gathering of militia on the northern frontier, especially at Sackett's Harbor, from which place General Dearborn, commander in chief of the Northern Department, resolved to invade Canada.

Fewer Convicted Of Intoxication

New York State Record of Convictions for 1925 Shows Falling Off of 1,599 for Popular Intoxication. Which Furnished Nearly One-Fourth of Total Convictions.

Albany, Feb. 22.—Old New York state has been kicking up its heels a bit during the past year, with the result that 77,201 persons were convicted in courts of special sessions and courts of record. During 1924, the total was 74,959. The great majority of these, convictions came in courts of special sessions, amounting to 68,287, as compared with 60,145 in 1924, and 61,169 in 1923.

The annual report on crime will be submitted to the Legislature tonight by Florence E. S. Knapp, secretary of state. This report will show among other things that nearly one-quarter of the total convictions in courts of special sessions were for intoxication, there having been 15,670 such convictions during the past year, as against 17,269 the year before. Convictions last year for misdemeanors amounted to 43,111 and petit larceny, 3,820.

Of those convicted last year, five persons stated that they had retired from business. One of the outstanding features of the report is in the fact that a couple of bartenders were convicted in courts of special sessions, and one bootlegger as well. Accountants figured wrong to the extent of 17, and landed in the tolls. Three architects made the wrong end of plans, while 85 auto mechanics did a poor job, at least to the extent of being convicted of a crime that brought them before a judge. Bankers fared the same as the rest before, four being convicted. One bird fancier must have fancied other than song, while 148 carpenters were spiked by the law. Merchants to the number of sixty were weighed in the balance and found wanting—of innocence. Three civil engineers were not on the level, while nine decorators touched the high spots. There were 261 farmers that wandered from the straight and narrow, while 107 housewives were convicted of crimes more serious than leaving the dishes unwashed.

A total of 147 persons were convicted of murder and manslaughter in this state last year, with fifteen executions, as compared with 136 and four executions during 1924.

MOMBACCUS CENTER.
Mombaccus Center, Feb. 22.—John Mertine of Tobasco had the misfortune lose a fine Jersey heifer.

Owing to the perseverance and energy of Asay Wynkoop assisted by Elling Churchwell and Charley Goloup, the cross road past J. Herring's, from Mombaccus to Tobasco, has been kept open for all kinds of traffic through all the severe storms. The ice houses through this vicinity are being filled by Claude Christian from the Decker pond fifth 16 inch ice.

Edward Terwilliger of Kerhonkson called on J. M. Herring on Wednesday. Mr. Herring loaned him his wheel chair for the use of his little son, who was accidentally shot in the foot about three weeks ago. He was taken to Ellenville Hospital where the foot was amputated. His father brought him home Wednesday and said he was doing as well as could be expected.

Mr. Goukel, who was in the Benedictine Hospital about three weeks, came home last week. He is doing well.

PAY-NIGHT

By DOUGLAS MALLOCH

THERE is dancing tonight at the bar.
And the boys and the girls will be there.
And the girls will be dressed in the best of their best.
And the boys will have grease on their hair.
There'll be pink lemonade in the arbor.
There'll be things you can buy at the stand—
Oh, the world's mighty fine on a pay-night.
When you've got a week's work in your hand!

Oh, the world's mighty fine on a pay-night.
And the street will be full of the crowd.
For they'll all be in town, walkin' up, walkin' down.
And they'll all be so gay and so proud.
For the trees by the road are a-blossom.
And the grass might sweet with the dew—
Oh, the world's mighty fine on a pay-night.
For then what's a dollar or two?

But what's that I hear at the window
And who's that who rattled the door?
Why, the wind's swung around, and the folks they have found
That it won't be so fine any more
Oh, the world's mighty fine on a pay-night.
But it gets mighty cold in the fall,
And when old Mister Wind comes a-howlin'
Then you ask what you done with it all!

Margaret Martin, Bella Hyman, Evelina Fitzgerald, Elizabeth Latham, of the State Teachers' College at Albany spent the week end and holiday at their homes in this village.

Betty Van Voorhis is recovering slowly from her recent illness of scarlet fever and mastoiditis at his home on Lister avenue.

Miss Louise Snyder, of the New Paltz Normal School, spent the holiday with her parents on Partition street.

A number of Saugertiesians visited the fire in Kingston on Sunday which partly destroyed the Kingston City Hospital on Saturday.

Miss Nellie Myers of this village is recovering from her recent illness.

At the last meeting of the board of trustees of the village it was decided that the book and ladder truck of the Washington Hook and Ladder Company should under no circumstances be taken out of the corporation limits.

A large number of new books have been added to the Saugerties public library and are now ready for the borrowers.

John Dorie of New York city is visiting his parents on Lister avenue.

Raymond Elmendorf of Sharon, N. J., spent the week end and holiday at his home on Lane street.

Wright & Gilmore, who have been manufacturing cigars for the past few months, have dissolved partnership and hereafter will manufacture cigars under their own separate name.

Mr. and Mrs. Matthew Love and daughter of Allen street spent Sunday with their daughter in Catskill.

Miss Joan Carter and daughter, Betty, have returned to Saugerties after spending several weeks with her mother on Lister avenue.

Miss William Carter, student nurse of the Benedictine Hospital of Kingston, spent Sunday at her home on Washington avenue.

Portrait Photographer Lawrence T. Taylor of New York city spent the holiday in town.

George Griffith, who has been visiting some time with his daughter in Florida, has returned to his home on Lister avenue.

Was it insured?

That is the first question asked after a fire. Perhaps it was insured—every thoughtful property owner carries fire insurance remember "just an insurance policy" isn't enough. There must be enough insurance to protect you from loss. Your policy should be written in a company in which you have absolute confidence—through an agency that has a reputation for giving dependable service.

But—

A policy which bears the name and trade-mark of THE HARTFORD FIRE INSURANCE COMPANY is your guarantee of sound indemnity—your money cannot buy more "DEPENDABLE INSURANCE."

Make sure about your insurance. See this Agency at once, tomorrow may be too late.

WHO SAID

"No sword bites so fiercely as an evil tongue."

THE man who uttered these words of wisdom was Sir Ralph Sidney one of the conspicuous figures in the court of Queen Elizabeth and one of the queen's favorite courtiers. Sir Philip had an intimate knowledge of the workings of the life at the court of England's monarch, and his remark, "No sword bites so fiercely as an evil tongue," may well be considered a mature reflection on the meteoric rise and fall of so many favorites of the queen.

Sir Philip had seen many rise to power, prominence and favor in court circles, only to be dashed to oblivion by the wagging of some evil tongue. And when this man compared the biting of an evil tongue to a sword, he knew whereof he spoke—for Sir Philip Sidney was a warrior as well as a man of letters, and it was on the battlefield that he gave his life for his nation and his queen.

Sir Philip was born in Kent, England, in 1554. Upon completing his education, he was introduced at court and Queen Elizabeth at once took a fancy to him. As a mark of her favor she sent him as ambassador to Germany. Upon his return he married Frances, daughter of Sir Francis Walsingham, and the same year (1585) the queen admitted him to the peerage. In the year 1585 he went to the Netherlands.

In addition to his fame as a courtier and a soldier, Sir Philip Sidney is known—best, perhaps—as a man of letters. His best known works are "The Arcadia," a medley in prose and verse after the prevalent Italian style of the period; "Astrophel and Stella," the first important body of sonnets in English; and "The Defence of Poesy," published in 1595.—Wayne D. McMurray.

VICK'S VAPORUB

150 YEARS AGO

The Origin of the U. S. A.

By Jonathan A. Rawson, Jr.

WASHINGTON'S BIRTHDAY, 1776

February 22 was no holiday in 1776. It was George Washington's first birthday as commander-in-chief of the army of the United Colonies, and the general became 44 years of age. But there was no celebration, perhaps not even a dinner party at his headquarters in Cambridge. Washington had in eight trying months won the confidence and affection of his soldiers and of the patriot leaders, but much time was to pass before his renown as a military leader was to become secure, and still more time before he was to win the popular title of "the father of his country."

He was not in 1776 the venerable figure made familiar by the stately formal portraits which are seen nowadays, and most of which were painted during or after his presidency. He won the high regard of his companions in arms, not in the slightest degree as a tribute paid to age, for at the beginning of his revolutionary career he was in the prime of middle life and among his associates in civilian and military circles were many men older than himself, while the younger men in high station were not enough younger to entitle him to their regard on the score of age alone. A portrait of him at the age of 40 represents him in military uniform without powdered hair, and shows him to have been a vigorous, stalwart personage with a ruddy complexion and the dignity of bearing, the reserve, the seriousness in manner, the firmness in resolution and the rare traits of mind and character which were his in such abundant measure and you have the Washington of February 22, 1776.

The trait which stood out most conspicuously on this birthday was his great daring—not merely his personal fearlessness, but also his readiness to undertake dangerous tasks as a military commander. What he most wanted to do at this time was to lead his army across the Charles River and attack the British in their Boston camp. Much to his disgust, his generals had twice advised vigorously against his project for leading his army across the ice against Boston. He had reluctantly accepted their judgment, but he was still determined to force the enemy "to come out and meet us," and despite his shortage of ammunition he continued his plans to attack Boston of his invaders.

To Clean Billiard Balls

Every billiard ball can be cleaned with a soft cloth, moistened with tepid water. Where the balls are so dirty that this is not effective, a small quantity of alcohol can be used with advantage by applying some to a cloth and rubbing the balls until they are clean.

Admit Countess For Ten Days

Vera, Countess of Cathcart, is on American soil following Order
From Washington Releasing Her for Ten Days Under $500 Bond.

New York, Feb. 22.—Vera, Countess of Cathcart, the famous title deportee, landed on American soil early today, having been unexpectedly released on orders from Washington.

She left Ellis Island, where she had been for almost a fortnight on a ferry boat and landed at the battery at midnight.

The slender, vivacious countess, is at liberty for ten days. Her thin face was wreathed in smiles as the boat drew up alongside the drab barge of the "Thank God, I'm free!"

When the countess, and an English army officer who accompanied her managed to get away from reporters she left for the Hotel Ambassador where the countess, weary from her long ordeal of investigation, immediately went to bed.

Personal Bond of $500.

The countess had been held a prior on Ellis Island since February 9, subject to deportation as "an undesirable alien, guilty of moral turpitude." The order freeing her "temporarily for ten days" under her personal bond of $500, which she gave,
was as unexpected as it was surprising. It came to Commissioner of Immigration Curran after 11 o'clock last night on the eve of an argument in United States district court for the countess's admission on a writ of habeas corpus.

The order from Washington was signed by Theodore G. Hiley, acting secretary of labor and read as follows: "Amend previous order excluding Vera Cathcart to read: 'Excluding temporarily for ten days under personal bond—$500. Notify United States attorney at once of action taken.'"

Curran called up Ellis Island on the telephone at once and told the countess she could take the next boat from the island, if she wanted to. The countess did.

Very Happy, Says Countess.

"I'm very happy," Countess Vera told newspapermen. "I'm sure my release is an answer to my prayer to ask God to show me if I had done anything to be punished, and I am sure that is why I am free."

"I have been terribly lonely at Ellis Island, but I have been well treated while there."

"The whole thing is ridiculous, and I think most people believe so. I scarcely know how to thank the American people for the sympathy
they have shown me in my plight."

A "do not disturb" sign was on the door of her room at the Ambassador where the countess was sleeping this morning. Hotel attaches were warned to keep visitors away from Lady Vera's room.

What brought about the unexpected order from Washington releasing Lady Vera caused considerable conjecture here today, officials at Ellis Island apparently having had no advance information that such an unexpected order was to be issued.

Nutty Natural History

By HUGH HUTTON.

THE WYOMING WUPP.

Countless numbers of these small creatures inhabit the forest regions, of southeastern Wyoming. They feed on the hard-shelled yellow butternut, and when they first arise in the morning they proceed to a butternut tree and vigorously shake it to dislodge the nuts. Having no teeth, they are unable to crack the nuts in the ordinary way, but go through the formula as shown in the picture. It is a long trip back up the tree after cracking each nut, so the wupp needs to be a most patient and persistent creature when gathering his fall harvest.

The wupp shown here is rather oversize from long and continued stuffing with butternuts, so a large walnut is needed for the body. The head is a fibert with popcorn ears attached. The legs are cloves with the claws on the bottom end.

Washington The Deliverer

WHEN America proclaimed its Independence it became free in name only.

Bound by the steel bayonets of Cornwallis, hedged in by the Old Royalist sympathies—it remained for a Great Man to undertake the task of actually releasing the infant Nation from the physical and mental bonds that held it in the grip of the Mother Country.

The man arose! He accomplished his mission! He made America actually free! It is to the memory of this great discoverer—Washington—that we dedicate this day.

Let us in our turn try to follow his examples of courage and unselfishness—for America's sake!

"Where You Meet Your Friends."

About the Folks

The Misses Marge Rafferty and Sadie Coughlin have returned to their homes after visiting friends in Poughkeepsie.

Miss Minnie Johnston of Morris Cove, Conn., who has been spending a month in town at the Antoinette, 59 St. James street, has returned to her home, being called there to attend to a realty transaction.

Mrs. Harold Shults of Woodstock, who underwent a serious operation at the Benedictine Hospital, performed by Dr. Mark O'Meara of this city, assisted by Dr. M. B. Downer of Woodstock, has so far recovered as to be able to return to her home this week.

COTTICKILL

Cottickill, Feb. 22.—A hot clam chowder supper will be served in the Reformed Church Hall on Wednesday evening, February 24, at 5:30 o'clock. Menu consists of hot clam chowder, baked beans, sandwiches, pickles, cheese, jelly, cake, tea and coffee. Home made ice cream on sale also. Proceeds for benefit of Ladies Aid Society. If very stormy supper will be held on next fair evening.

The church services at the Reformed Church were very well attended on Sunday. The Jr. O. U. A. M. assembled in their lodge rooms and marched in a body to the church. Everyone seemed to enjoy the good sermon by the pastor, the Rev. C. Van Tol and the excellent music from the new church organ. This organ was recently presented to the church by the Ladies Aid Society and is a big improvement to the church and its services. Much appreciation is felt and many thanks to the society for this gift are expressed.

Harry Snyder is installing a large motor to operate the machinery in his feed and grain warehouse.

Dr. Snyder Improving.

Dr. Frederick Snyder's condition was reported as very good today at his home on Clinton avenue, where he has been seriously ill for several days past.

Kills Mother, Takes Own Life

Cleveland, O., Feb. 22.—Hazel M. Cowles, 32, shot and killed her mother, Mrs. Nancy Cowles, 61, and then committed suicide today at the Cowles home at Solon, near here. Miss Cowles had been in ill health for nearly two years. She was discharged last Friday from a Cleveland hospital where she had been held for observation. The shooting took place just at dawn. Constable Hickox said he was informed by Mrs. Cowles's two grandsons, Raymond and Robert Moyer, 14 and 12 years of age respectively. She fired a bullet into her own head and fell lifeless beside her mother. The boys aroused neighbors who found both women dead when they reached the house.

5 Die in Sullivan County Fire

Six Others Are Missing and at Least Twenty Injured in Hurleyville Hotel Blaze—Smouldering Soft Coal Blamed.

Hurleyville, N. Y., Feb. 22.—Five persons were burned to death here today when flames swept Schindler's prairie hotel. Six others are missing and at least twenty are in hospitals suffering from injuries sustained when they jumped from windows of the burning hotel. Two of these probably will die.

There were forty week end guests in the hotel, most of them from New York city. Smouldering soft coal is blamed for starting the fire at three o'clock this morning.

The identified dead are: Denny Hand, waiter, Passaic, N. J.; Charles Garfinkel, employee, address unknown. Mary Velmoller, chambermaid, address unknown.

Two other bodies were recovered but were burned beyond recognition. Miss Sadie Cohen, of New York, was one of the guests who escaped.

"I woke up when I heard somebody yell 'fire,'" she said, "and when I opened my door and looked out in the hall everything was black with smoke."

"I didn't stop to pack anything. I just put on my fur coat and my slippers and felt my way down the stairs. The flames were just roaring through the upper part of the hotel then."

Hotel employees rounded up the guests and took them to other resort hotels in this village, and by a check-up expect to identify the bodies already taken from the ruins. Three were burned beyond recognition. The building cost about $60,000.

WEST HURLEY.

West Hurley, Feb. 22.—The friends and neighbors of County Clerk John H. Saxe are glad to see him out and around again after his recent illness.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Perry spent Wednesday evening in Kingston. The funeral of John Sicker of Port Ewen, formerly of Cleonard, was held in the M. E. Church on Sunday afternoon, February 14, and was very largely attended in spite of the stormy weather.

Mrs. Norman Cole and daughter, Beulah, have been spending a few days in Kingston.

Thomas McAuliffe has returned home from Detroit, Mich., where he spent a few days on business for the American Railway Express Company. He reports a very pleasant trip.

A number of people of this place have been confined to their home with the severe cold that is going around.

Fred Hammond is enjoying his vacation.

Mrs. Arthur Joy has returned to her home here after spending a week with her cousin in Catskill.

A number of people from this place were Kingston visitors on Monday.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Hammond and family spent Sunday in Denver, N. Y. Earl Lane has been helping C. R. Teller in the store due to the illness of Clarence Ostrander.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Ostrander and daughter, Phyllis, of Saugerties, spent Tuesday with Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Ostrander.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Hogan were in Kingston on Thursday.

The new house of Charles Kierstedt is progressing nicely. George Reynolds of Woodstock and Clayton Vredenburgh of this place are the carpenters.

Zion Church Entertainment.
An entertainment will be given at Franklin Street A. M. E. Zion Church tonight, under the auspices of Lawton Progressive Federation Club. Chicken dinner will be served at 6 o'clock.

Don't Telephone Unless Necessary

Emergency Calls Are Necessary, But Central Can't Distinguish Between Them and Curiosity Calls—How Situation Was Handled Saturday.

During the Kingston City Hospital fire, the telephone operators were very busy due to the number of emergency calls which are necessary when a fire of this kind occurs.

The first call for the fire department came at 12:20 p. m., from Kingston 2270, a store next door to the hospital, followed almost immediately by a call from the hospital line.

Special operators were immediately assigned to the police, fire department and hospital lines and calls from these lines were given preference. The regular relief operators, the girls in the lunch room and those due to go off duty, volunteered for service. Within ten minutes after the first call, every position of the local board was covered and from then until 2:15 p. m., calls came in so fast that it was necessary to place two operators at some positions to handle them.

While many of these calls were from interested people who had friends or relatives in the hospital, more were curiosity calls from people not vitally interested. As it is impossible for the telephone operators to distinguish between emergency and curiosity calls, this means that calls for help are liable to be delayed and cause serious damages if not loss of life. That this did not happen during the hospital fire was due only to the fact that sufficient operators were immediately available to care for the unusual volume. A similar number at night would prove disastrous.

The telephone should not be used during a serious fire or other catastrophe unless it is absolutely necessary. Cooperating with the telephone operators in this matter will help them prevent delays in emergency calls for help from the fire and police departments.

Society Notes

A Birthday Party.

The residence of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Simonetti, 596 Broadway, was the scene of a jolly birthday party given on Sunday afternoon in honor of the birthday of their son, Herbert Simonetti of Boston. The young man is a student at the Northeastern University in that city, and came home to spend Washington's Birthday. There were 57 at the banquet tables, relatives and near friends being present from New York, Peekskill, Barrytown and other places.

Birthday Gathering.

Mrs. Jennie Murdock entertained at dinner on Sunday at her home at Sleightsburgh the following guests: Mr. and Mrs. Charles Entrott, Mr. and Mrs. Milton Entrott and Jennie Entrott of East Chester street, Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Entrott of Abol street, Mr. and Mrs. Florentine Baker and daughter, Florence, of Delaware avenue, Vincent Edmunds, Herbert Murdock, Howard Murdock and Mrs. Jennie Murdock. The occasion was the birthday of Milton Entrott and Vincent Edmunds. At a late hour the guests departed, wishing them many more happy birthdays.

SHOOTS WIFE WHILE THEIR EIGHT CHILDREN LOOK ON.

Pittsburgh, Pa., Feb. 22.—While their eight small children looked on, Fred Daszkowitz, 48, shot his wife in their home near Wilmerding today, according to Police Chief R. J. Martin, who arrested Daszkowitz after he also had shot himself.

Police said the shooting followed a quarrel. The frightened children rushed into the streets, crying to neighbors for help. Mrs. Daszkowitz's condition was reported critical at McKeesport Hospital. Daszkowitz did not resist arrest.

The show promises to be one of the best amateur minstrels staged in the city in a long time.

Three Community Meetings Planned

The holding of all day Farm and Home Bureau winter meetings which have proved so successful in ten communities are to be resumed this week.

Stone Ridge, Tougore and Gardiner members and friends are making preparations for a big day in each place this week. Inasmuch as poultry and dairy are the leading farm crops in each of these communities, speakers from the State College have been engaged to cover both subjects.

Professor H. A. Hopper, connected with Cornell Animal Husbandry Department for many years and several times a speaker in this county, will handle the dairy topics. Professor Hopper is planning on discussing "Economic Feeding of Dairy Cattle." Few topics could be discussed which would have a greater interest to dairymen at this time.

R. C. Ogle who has already spoken in five communities during January will again take charge of the poultry discussion. At the January meetings he gave particular attention to the feeding problems but inasmuch as the hatching season is now at hand, he will aim his efforts at this time toward a discussion on breeding and hatching problems. The feeding and brooding of chicks, always a big factor, will also be discussed. Poultrymen are especially urged to offer questions for discussion.

The Stone Ridge members have planned their meeting for Thursday, February 25, in the Grange Hall, beginning at 10:30 a. m. Professor Hopper and Mr. Ogle will speak at both morning and afternoon sessions. At noon the ladies of the Home Bureau will serve a "Hot Community Lunch," prepared under the direction of the nutrition leader and served according to the latest Home Bureau teachings. Immediately following the lunch, an illustrated talk on the subject, "Foods Make a Difference" will be given by Evelyn Vance, Home Bureau manager. The talk is given in connection with the Home Bureau nutrition project now under way throughout the county and will be of interest to men, women and children. Following this Professor Hopper and Mr. Ogle will continue the discussions opened in the morning.

At the Tougore meeting on Friday, February 26, the Home Bureau part of the program has been omitted, although dinner will be served at noon and the balance of the program remain the same.

At the Gardiner meeting on Saturday, February 27, it is planned to split the sessions by discussing poultry topics only in the morning and dairy topics only in the afternoon. Luncheon will be served at noon by members of the Home Bureau followed by the illustrated talk on the value of proper foods. The New I. O. O. F. Hall in Gardiner has been rented for the day.

LOCAL DEATH RECORD.

Pays Tribute To Washington

New York, Feb. 22.—New York city suspended business today to join the nation in honoring the birthday of George Washington.

Amidst a colorful guard of honor composed of sailors and soldiers, Major General Charles P. Summerall, commander of the second corps area, read the declaration of independence this morning in city hall park where Washington proclaimed it 150 years ago to the Continental Army.

A number of speeches, banquets and celebrations were scheduled throughout the day by patriotic societies.

Recent attacks on Washington's character were derided today by Colonel Thomas Denny, president of the Sons of the Revolution.

The celebration of today constitutes an official tribute by the Sons of the Revolution to the religious Washington, the prayerful Washington, the God-fearing patriot whom neither public slander nor secret vilification can impugn in the hearts and minds of all true Americans," declared Colonel Denny.

Bandits Get $15,000 in Jewels.

New York, Feb. 22.—Two bandits took advantage of Max Spielman's decision to keep his jewelry store in the Bronx open on the holiday robbed him of $15,000 worth of jewels today. When Spielman phoned the police that his diamonds were not insured and begged the spare him, they knocked him unconscious with the butt of revolver escaped.

America Will Win Team Matches

New York, Feb. 22.—The great American come back, our Mr. Tilden's latest play, will have a Park avenue opening this afternoon just as soon as the court is cleared of French citizens battling over what may be left, if anything, of the American indoor tennis title.

Beginning to suspect that they might not be as good as popular rumor had led them to believe, Tilden, Richards and Hunter will begin intensive practice this afternoon with one abiding ambition, to win. The defeat of the French in the team match of last week, Tilden and Richards, beaten by Borotra and Lacoste, is specifically in the championship, may be said to have worked up a nominal interest in this project. "You can bet all the bodies in the basket that Tilden will beat either Lacoste or Borotra in the team matches," declared one official today. "I think Richards will win his singles match, too. Don't waste any time calling for help for American tennis. It will take care of itself. Tilden and Richards just happened to be off form at a time when the French were right on top of their game or just a little above it."

As a matter of fact, most tennis men seem to disagree with the experts who alleged that Tilden's defeat indicated that he had started to slip. It is admitted by officials that Tilden looks none too well but they declare that he is in first class condition, except for the matter of being a trifle "short" in the normal development of his game.

The French practiced assiduously throughout the week. The American not at all.

This condition, however, is to be nullified, starting this afternoon and continuing until further notice. Two hours of steady practice by Tilden, Richards, Hunter and Watson Washington is scheduled for every afternoon this week until Thursday, when the international series will begin.

Legion Track Meet at Boston

Boston, Mass., Feb. 22.—With fourteen running events and 12 relay races on the program including three invitation contests, the Legion mile, the Gaston 500 yard run and the special 85 yard dash the Massachusetts American Legion's seventh annual track meet will be held at the East Armory this afternoon.

The 600 yard run for the Colonel Gaston trophy with Walter Mulvihill, of Holycross, winner during the past two meets, Phineas Suber of City College, New York, Frank Kane, of Harvard, and Bill McKillop of Boston College, competing, loomed as the feature event of the meet.

Next in importance promised to be the mile race for the American Legion trophy. The announcement that Joie Ray had turned professional means that this trophy will remain in competition for at least three more years. Jimmy Connolly, former Georgetown star, was the favorite to win.

Do Hart Hubbard, former University of Michigan athlete, is entered in three events, the 50 yard handicap dash, the fifty yard handicap hurdles, and the sixty-five yard invitation dash.

LENGLEN ACCUSED OF POOR SPORTSMANSHIP

Nice, Feb. 22.—Mile Lenglen has been greatly upset by anonymous letters which she has received from the United States, accusing her of poor sportsmanship.

One of these letters, which she showed to the International Tennis Service, mailed from New York, said: "You are bound to be beaten by Miss Wills eventually, why not now?"

"I have always thought of America as a land of real sports, but unsigned letters seem to me poor sportsmanship," said Suzanne.

Golf Very Popular.
New York, Feb. 22.—A newly instituted course in golf has been popular at the college of the City of New York. It was declared today that many students have been refused admittance owing to lack of facilities.

Hundreds of undergraduates already have been registered for the course.

Wool Marketing Shows Increase

Coöperative Plan Dates Back for Half Century in United States.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture)
Wool has been sold co-operatively by farmers and ranchers in the United States for half a century or more. The oldest co-operative wool marketing organization in existence is believed to be the Putnam County Wool Growers' association of Greencastle, Ind. Farmers in that locality have been selling wool co-operatively since 1885. There is little doubt, according to the Department of Agriculture, that the beginning of co-operative wool marketing in this country dates back considerably farther than the available records go.

Nevertheless the largest growth in the wool co-operative movement has taken place in the last six years. There was but little increase in the number of wool co-operative associations in the ten years prior to 1910. Since that year, however, the number has more than doubled. Moreover, about 75 per cent of the wool handled co-operatively in 1924 was handled by regional or state-wide organizations. Twenty-two associations of this type, operating in 22 states, handled nearly 12,500,000 pounds of wool in 1924. Their total membership was in the neighborhood of 30,000.

Handling Facilities.
Co-operative handling of wool is facilitated by the fact that the commodity is practically nonperishable. Another advantage is that wool selling is not a complicated business. Sometimes a single sale will dispose of a year's output for a large number of wool growers. These features of the crop have often enabled wool growers to co-operate in marketing without any formal organization, and without any large amount of capital. Local wool co-operatives have frequently followed this method. In recent years, however, the rise of state and regional associations has called for a greater measure of formal organization, says the Department of Agriculture.

Fairly comprehensive data have just been compiled by the department regarding active wool marketing associations in all parts of the United States. It has detailed reports from 68 organizations located in 32 states. Twenty-seven of these associations are independent locals. Twenty-two are regional or state-wide pools, one is a sales agency doing a national business, eleven are associations that handle wool only incidentally, and seven are educational or service organizations. While this list may not include all the active wool co-operatives in the country, it is believed to represent considerably more than 80 per cent of all the co-operative business done in wool.

Wool Handled.
Eighteen of the twenty-seven independent local co-operative associations have been organized since 1910. Nearly 4,000,000 pounds of wool were handled in 1924 by the twenty-seven independent associations. Ohio has more wool producers in co-operative associations than any other state. Oregon holds the second place in this respect, and Indiana, South Dakota, New York, Tennessee and West Virginia follow in the order given. Five regional associations in 1924, each had a membership exceeding 1,500. The other associations of this type had memberships of less than 1,500. Wool co-operative associations in 29 states handled 16,323,394 pounds of wool in 1924, compared with 19,847,861 pounds in 1923 and 10,822,700 pounds in 1922. Evidence of the extent to which wool co-operation has been consolidated in recent years is given by the fact that 68 per cent of the total quantity of wool handled co-operatively in 1924 was handled by seven associations. On the other hand, twenty-two small associations handled only 4 per cent of the total. The seven associations whose operations accounted for 68 per cent of the total wool sold co-operatively each handled more than 500,000 pounds. Thirty-eight other associations handled less than 500,000 pounds each.

Different Ways to Pack Eggs and Prevent Loss

Different ways of packing eggs under commercial shipping conditions, both as to crates and cans, was recently carried out by the committee representing manufacturers, shippers, railroads, and express companies. The damage occurring during transit was reduced to terms of the average money lost per case. Returns showed a very small advantage in favor of straw and hay stuffed cans and showed the following range in terms of money lost per case: Standard cans and standard fillers with cup flats throughout lost less than one cent a case; cans cut down slightly with standard fillers, embossed flats, and four exterior pads in them rank next; third rank was standard cans with standard fillers and flats having six exterior pads.

Care of Cows and Heifers

Cows and heifers born in freezing weather should be looked after closely. At this period, cold winds, snow, rain, and lack of attention will add greatly to the cost of any milk they produce later. They should be brought to the barn and put into condition on warm hay, some straw, and a suitable grain mixture. Cows handled in this way will make cheaper milk later.

SAFE DEPOSIT EXPERIENCES

By Mr. R.

Last week I hunted high and low for the copy of a certain contract.

I couldn't find it anywhere.

My son said, "Why not look in your safe deposit box?"

I did. The contract was there.

If I had not found it, I would have been out $100.00—enough to pay for my safe deposit box for 33 1-3 years.

For safety's sake, rent a safe deposit box.

Boxes: $3.00 a year.
